SIR BASIL GOULD, BRITISH POLITICAL OFFICER IN SIKKIM, BHUTAN AND TIBET

1936 Christmas Greetings From Lhasa

Sir Basil Gould was born in England on 29 December 1883 and passed away on 27 December 1956. He was a British Trade Agent in Gyantse, Tibet from 1912 to 1913, promoted to British Political Officer in Sikkim, Bhutan and Tibet from 1935 to 1945. In August 1936, Gould led a delegation to Lhasa to negotiate with the Tibetan government on the possibility of the 9th Panchen Lama's return to Tibet, British military aid and the creation of a British office in Lhasa. In 1940, Gould attended the installation ceremonies of the 14th Dalai Lama in Lhasa, Tibet.

Philatelically, he is most well-known for sending native Tibetan paintings as Christmas cards to his high-placed friends in India and England from Lhasa. These cards were placed inside native cover affixed with Tibetan stamps cancelled in Lhasa. He must have direct supply from the post office, as some of these covers were affixed with stamps from proof sheets. The covers were then placed in an outer envelope and sent by courier to Gyantse for posting abroad. While recipient torn open the outer covers, inner cover and card were kept as souvenirs.
